

Global Dynamic Engagement

THE PURPOSE | THE PROCESS | THE ROADMAP

Global Dynamic Engagement (GDE) is an integral aspect of Lund University's continued efforts to advance as an internationally leading institution which defends democracy, human rights and academic freedom. As one of four priority areas in the University's strategic work, global dynamic engagement contributes to innovation, digitalisation and sustainable development, and places Lund University as The University of Choice.

THE PURPOSE – GLOBAL DYNAMIC ENGAGEMENT

Global Dynamic Engagement supports the University concerning international matters. It strengthens and develops Lund University's international impact while simultaneously consolidating our place in the global arena. Through global hubs and together with anchor universities and other partners around the world, Lund University actively addresses key global challenges through a dynamic, responsible and sustainable approach to research, education, innovation and cooperation.

THE PROCESS – GLOBAL DYNAMIC ENGAGEMENT

A university-wide process involving advisory and decision-making bodies at all levels provides the necessary foundation for establishing priorities for the upcoming year. These overarching priorities serve to navigate and guide the University's global engagement. The process results in frameworks and roadmaps for the geographical areas in which the University operates.

THE ROADMAP – GLOBAL DYNAMIC ENGAGEMENT

The annual GDE roadmaps outline prioritised activities in research, education, innovation and cooperation for each geographical area where the University operates. At the same time, the roadmaps lay the foundation for a flexible and adaptable approach of working with international matters.

GLOBAL DYNAMIC ENGAGEMENT MEANS

- Partnerships that make an international impact over time and match the University's direction and objectives within research, education and innovation.
- Collaborations that enrich research and education and lead to global development and strengthen the University's competitiveness and attractiveness.
- Memberships in networks and alliances that maximise the quality of the University's activities and increase the opportunities to influence developments in Europe and beyond.
